2. WAXING

Waxing is a form of semi-permanent hair removal which removes the hair from the root. New hair will not grow back in the previously waxed area for four to six weeks. Almost any area of the body can be waxed, including eyebrows, face, pubic area (called bikini waxing), legs, arms, back, abdomen and feet. There are many types of waxing suitable for removing unwanted hair.

Strip waxing (soft wax) is accomplished by spreading a wax thinly over the skin. A cloth or paper strip is applied and pressed firmly, adhering the strip to the wax and the wax to the skin. The strip is then quickly ripped against the direction of hair growth, as parallel as possible to the skin to avoid trauma to the skin

Strip-less wax (as opposed to strip wax), also referred to as hard wax, is applied somewhat thickly and with no cloth or paper strips. The wax then hardens when it cools, thus allowing the easy removal by a therapist without the aid of the cloth. This waxing method is very beneficial to people who have sensitive skin. Strip-less wax does not adhere to the skin as much as strip wax does, thus making it a good option for sensitive skin as finer hairs are more easily removed because the hard wax encapsulates the hair as it hardens. The strip-less waxing method can also be less painful.

1. HANDS & FEET TREATMENT

MANICURE & PEDICURE:

A manicure is a cosmetic beauty treatment for the fingernails and hands performed in a nail salon. A manicure consists of filing, shaping of the free edge, pushing (with cuticle pusher) and clipping (with cuticle nippers) any nonliving tissue (limited to cuticle and hand nails) from the nail plate, treatments, massage of the hand and the application of polish.

When applied to the toenails and feet, this treatment is referred to as a pedicure.

SOAK-OFF GEL NAIL:

Soak-off gel nails are often otherwise known as "soft" gel nails. Traditional nail polish is paint, wait forever, and go. It chips easily and can be a pain to remove. Soak-off gel nail polish is painted on as well, but after each layer, it is "cured" with a UV light. This means that the nails are placed under the light to dry before adding another layer. Soak-off gel polishes can be soaked in acetone for removal. They are more flexible and lightweight, which sounds better to most because they seem more natural

PARAFFIN WAX TREATMENT:

The hands or feet are typically dipped into a tub of warm paraffin wax -- often two or three times -- to create a thick coating that will retain heat for several minutes. As the wax hardens, the paraffin's natural emollient softens skin and the heat opens pores. When the cooled wax is pulled away from the skin, it also removes dead skin cells, leaving skin smoother.

Paraffin wax treatments are also beneficial to dry, cracked hands and feet. Paraffin is an excellent moisturizer because it forms a light waterproof coating over your skin that helps it retain the oils produced by your body. This "waterproofing" makes paraffin treatments great for soothing and healing dry, cracked skin - particularly winter-worn hands and feet - because it offers protection from external elements.

1. HENNA PAINTING

Henna has been used for hundreds of years and is a natural plant dye. When applied to the skin, the henna produces a temporary stain - it is similar to a tattoo, but not permanent. Henna is completely natural, perfectly safe and painless.

Henna can be painted almost anywhere on the body and is applied directly onto clean, sanitised skin where the paste hardens as it dries. Once the paste hardens, a mixture of lemon juice and sugar will be applied to the design to help darken the stain and keep the paste on for longer.

Henna is traditionally placed on the hands, feet, ankle, shins, and wrists. You need thick skin in order to get a good dark stain. That is why you see it on hands and feet as this is where your thickest skin is. The farther up your body you go the thinner your skin gets. Less skin, less stain.
